HURRICANE FLOSSIE KEEPS NON DISASTER RESPONSE STATE WORKERS ON THE BIG ISLAND HOME FOR A SECOND DAY

HONOLULU- Due to the potential damage from Hurricane Flossie, State employees on the Big Island who are designated “Non Disaster Response Workers” are being told not to report to work tomorrow, Wednesday, August 15, 2007. This will be the second straight day those employees have been kept from their jobs due to the effects of the hurricane brushing the island.

However, the Department of Human Resources Development says those State employees in Hawaii County who are designated as “Disaster Response Workers” are expected to report for work tomorrow.

Big Island State employees who are unsure of their status should contact their department’s designated Civil Defense Coordinator or personnel officer.
